Press Release

The ADAMI Media Prize 2018 Deadline Is Over

Yesterday was the final deadline for submissions to the ADAMI Media Prize 2018 competition. We are thrilled to announce that we have received more than 300 submissions from our six EU Eastern Partnership countries! The ADAMI team is now finalizing preparations for the International jury session, to be held in Odessa, Ukraine, 22-26 October. Twenty-four media professionals, senior diplomats, journalists and film directors from around Europe will gather to review all applications and determine the nominees and winners of this year's ADAMI scholarships and prizes. All of those nominated will be invited to attend the ADAMI Media Prize Gala ceremony in Chisinau, Moldova on 29 November.

Whatever the outcome, all works submitted for the ADAMI Media Prize receive significant international exposure; every submission is reviewed by a jury of international media experts and is published for global viewing in the ADAMI Digital Media Archive.

We wish success to every participant!

Be sure to follow ADAMI's news here and stay tuned for results of the 2018 competition's final stages!

The ADAMI Media Prize, which is awarded every two years, honors outstanding television and Internet productions that address cultural diversity or national, ethnic or religious minorities. In addition, the communication and networking of media professionals from Eastern and Western Europe is promoted in various workshop and dialogue formats.

The ADAMI Media Prize is financed by the Federal Foreign Office (Germany) and ProCredit Holding (Germany)
